One eyed-horse
Coat burned and coarse Despite the blast, still plucky
Has no left legs
But crawls (with pegs!)
Responds to name
Of "Lucky"

Tornadoes come in funnel form, in weather that is usually warm, preceded by a sky that's gray, unless, of course, it's night, not day, in which case there's no clue at all, of possible impending squall, except perhaps (which you won't see) a now-and-then uprooted tree, or barns that move with quite a clatter, several fields before they shatter, im-bedding with a mighty breeze tiny shards in full-grown trees, by which time a prudent feller hastens to the nearest cellar, (or-din-nar-ly can be found somewhere nearby underground) there to quake 'til by-and-by, his house is sucked into the sky, leaving him and wife as able, praying neath a basement table, to get, despite their lingering fright, some sleep before the morning light, mindful as they hit the hay tomorrow is an-other day ...

A Primer on Tornadoes

ANOTHER STINKING LIMERICK!

There once was a chap with a taint Who would fart up a storm when he'd paint
His co-workers froze
And the motto they chose Was
"If HE is painting, WE ain't!"

Wild, Isn't It, What A Little Bronze Padding Can Do?

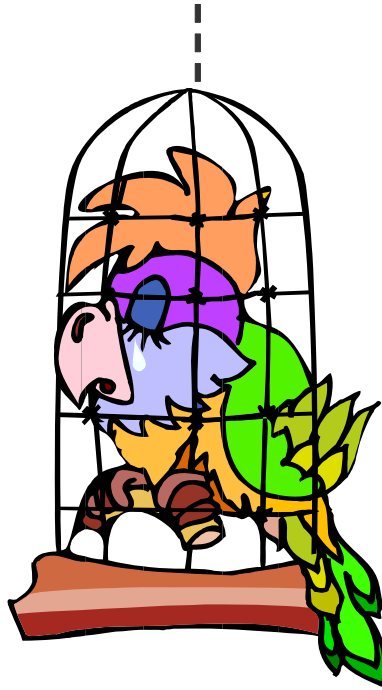

C: 2005 - Dr. Ron Pataky -- Custom-Ransom-Notes.com

A mannequin fell for a statue Whose figure was simply sublime
And although the statue continued aloof
He imagined he'd win her in time
When he then struck a pose to be kissed She growled NO! ... and the guy wondered why "Don't come another step closer," she hissed
"Under this bronze I'M A GUY!"

Who me? I'm doin' life

Old birds
Teach their young birds
(And they perch on every word!)
Window glass
You bet your ass
Is better seen than heard!

Locals All Cheer Their “Body~Brew Beer”

C: 2006 - Dr. Ron Pataky -- Custom-Ransom-Notes.com

“Body~Brew Beer”

Has a name somewhat queer
But still is one hell
Of a toddy

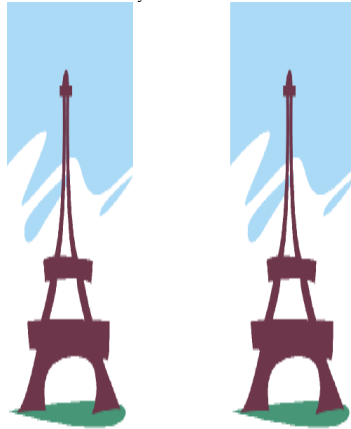

You can drink it all day
But by morning you’ll say:

“Someone PLEASE
Put a head on my body!”

The beast stood ten feet tall Roughly half a ton in all And ERECT he was Attentive as a Mantis

Researchers stacked the bones
With an eye towards future clones
And they named the creature Ursi Pissipantus!

It Was A Day That Shot By Like A Lightning Bolt!

Fully 87 per cent of the day's nothing occurred along this lovely stretch of secluded beach!

Today we recall Almost nothing at all
At first, all the history was blurred
But later we find That unless one is blind
It is clear almost nothing occurred
The presence of void
We might have enjoyed Except for the fact of the matter
That front to the back We witnessed a lack Of a former
(And also a latter!)

Barking Around the Clock Earns Millie No Kudos At All!

Millie, though freezing (Whose hobby was sneezing)
Decided to fold in some coughing
She went to the doctor Who suddenly socked her With news there was strep in the offing
He took a deep listen Found several thumps missin'
Then said that her cough wasn't right
As she glared at the doc
She said, "What a crock...
"And after I practiced all night??"

AND ... She's NOW Talkin' About Cookies For Santa Claus!

There's just no end to it all!

May as well wash up 'n get started!

My chores more and more
Are becoming a chore
And it's MORE of the chores
That I fear!

Like rinsing my socks
And RE-setting the clocks!
And BOTH of them
Two times a year!!

Say Cock-a-doodle-doo Say Fiddle-doodle-doo Say Yankee-doodle-doo All quite zippy!

But if a gal's stayed
Many years an old maid
Then ANY dude'll do
Bet your bippy!!
